Market Your Eggs at Higher Price.

Money is being made to-day in Vermont with poultry even under the present grain prices. It can only be done, however, by stopping all leaks and wastes. Judging by the quality and condition of eggs that appear on the average market, there is much need of more attention to grading, cleanliness and mar-keting methods. This will improve the appearance of your product. After these things are done, look at your selling point is the fact that one grocery store was paying the farmer 36 cents per dozen, and less than 25 miles away eggs were selling at retail in stores at 50 cents per dozen. The farmer should get some of this 14 cents difference by four One example which illustrates this some of this 14 cents difference by forming egg circles or some co-operative means of selling.

You may not have eggs enough your self to bother, but there are eggs enough John W. Cairns, Jr., of Rutland Was in your section to pay to centralize the production into one party's hands. Have him or her candle, grade and pack the eggs attractively and also attend to the shipping and marketing. VERMONT W. S. S. NOTES.

Vermont Junior High School Pupil Wins Walter W. Dearborn of Brattleboro Had Prize for National W. S. S. Poster,

Not only has the war savings stamp idea taken a firm hold on Vermont people in a financial way, but it has claimed the attention of many along special con-structive lines. For instance, a pupil in one of the junior high schools of Vermont day while riding with D. W. Harris of has received one of the four first prizes West Brattleboro. Mr. Dearborn, who

The afternoons will be left entirely free for recreation. Sports on the athletic fields, a picnic in the Cathedral pines, canoeing on the Connecticut, trips to the St. Gauden's studio, Cornish, and to Camps Aloha and Wynons on Lake Morey have already been planned.

Further information can be obtained from the Vermont Sunday School association, Burlington, Vt.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an Inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Instachian Tube. When this tube is inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces of the system.
